Italian legislation on packaging environmental marking

Düsseldorf, 16th December 2022

The legislative decree amended Italian environmental law in the following areas: packaging labeling for environmental reasons; the circular economy; and the expanded liability of producers for the trash they produce, waste management, and transportation.

According to the revised standards for packaging's environmental labeling, packaging must now include the following mandatory labels:

Indications on the separate collection, reuse, recovery, and recycling as well as accurate customer information regarding the packaging's final destination based on Commission Decision 97/129/EC, the type of packing materials utilized. The decisions made by the EU Commission as well as the appropriate Italian technical standards (UNI) must be taken into account.
